RUSSIA DECIDES TO ATTACK POLAND

Squalus Relinquishes Heroic Sailor Crew

FIRST BODIES IDENTIFIED BY FINGER PRINTS

Dead First Removed From Ocean Flooded Forward
Engine Room

INQUIRY COURT RESUMES

Witnesses Include Salvage Workers And Members Of Rescued Crew

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept 15 —Bodies of the 26 victims of the sinking of the submarine Squalus today were disinterred from the salvaged submersible as a naval board of inquiry opened its final hearings on the fatal plunge of the craft on May 23.

Members of the crew were victims of drowning, medical officials said.

The first five bodies, positively identified by finger print experts from Washington, were those of:
John P. Hathaway, fireman, first class, Laporte, Ind.

Joshua Casey, fireman, first class, Grand Ridge, Fla.

Eugene A. Hoffman, machinist, first class, Cleveland.

Hulek McAfee, electrician's mate, second class, Eastern Point, Ga.

John A. Chestnutt, chief machinist's mate, Oakland, Cal.

The bodies were taken from the forward engine room and removed to the naval hospital morgue to await claiming by relatives.

Only Squalus victim to be buried in Arlington Cemetery will be Ensign J. H. Patterson.

Removal Screened

The medical corps in charge of removing the bodies screened its activities by erecting a high board fence on the deck of the submarine. Behind this screen the bodies were brought up to the deck, wrapped in sheets and taken up an improvised gangplank to the dock. From this point they were

Ensign J. H. Patterson of the Oklahoma City, one of the victims of the submarine Squalus, was a personal friend of Herbert Sprenger, East Franklin Street.

Patterson, the only member of the Squalus crew who will be buried with military honors in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, D. C., and Sprenger, husband of the former Dorothy

Academy at Annapolis at the same time. They entered the academy together in 1932 and were graduated together in 1936.

taken to the morgue for identification. Some of their shipmate survivors looked on.

The salvaged submarine was brought into drydock only after a night of anxious effort. Water, pouring back into the battery room despite constant pumping kept the stern of the vessel down for hours. Finally, a rising tide and continued flow of compressed air brought up the heavy stern and the $5,000,000 sub was eased into drydock.

The court of inquiry, which had recessed after holding preliminary hearings following rescue of 33 survivors via a diving bell four months ago, resumed its investigation in an effort to determine why the Squalus plunged to the bottom. Witnesses included salvage workers and Squalus crew members. The board members inspected the ill-starred vessel in dry dock.

JACKIM BOND SET AT $10,000

Accused Burglar Refuses To Enter Plea In Court Of Mayor Cady

Felix Frank Jackim, Youngstown ex-convict, Friday remained a nemesis to Circleville authorities when he refused to plead to a charge of breaking and entering the John W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co., East Mill

Berger Hospital under police guard after his escape attempt last Saturday night when he was trapped in the office of the milling company. Police say he was preparing to attempt to break into the milling company safe.
Patrolman Charles Mumaw prevented his escape when he shot him through the left leg, break-

RADIO ADDRESS OF LONE EAGLE STIRS INTEREST

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Intense speculation was aroused today over the nature of the message Col.
Charles A. Lindbergh will deliver this evening when he breaks a silence of many years to speak on the topic "America and The European Wars" over the major radio networks.

The talk originating in Washington where Col. Lindbergh yesterday completed a five months period of service with the army, will be heard from 9:45 to 10 p. m.
(Circleville time).

Particular interest centered on any views Lindbergh might chose to express on the question of revision of the neutrality laws to supply England and France with war planes. America's famous flyer has inspected at first hand the aerial armadas of Germany, Russia, England and France.
He recently told a congressional committee he believed Nazi planes were superior to American craft in all types except heavy bombers and urged an immediate intensification of American aerial research.

SWIM POOL BLAZES, BELIEVE IT OR NOT

When a man bites a dog that may or may not be news, according to the editor's opinion. But when a swimming pool catches fire a reporter really has a story worthy of anybody's newspaper.
And just that happened in Circleville Thursday evening following the hottest September 15 on record.

About 7:30 smoke poured into the Cliftona Theatre and some patrons fearing that the building was afire left hurriedly. The fire department was called and investigated. There it was, the blazing swimming pool at the rear of the theatre. Maybe the pool's water had evaporated during the hot afternoon. None was in the pool.
Dried leaves were there, however, and a carelessly tossed match or cigarette had provided a story that stretches the imagination of everyone except Ripley, the story of the burning swimming pool.
Smoke entered the theatre when drawn in by the ventilating fans that help cool the interior.

Roosevelt to Request Millions for Armament

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—Determined to strengthen the nation's anti-aircraft defenses and the fleet to keep Europe's war away from American shores, President Roosevelt, it was learned today, will ask the coming special session of congress for a deficiency appropriation of $112,000,000 for the army and navy.

With some $1,800,000,000 appropriated in the last congress for national defense and preparedness for 1939-1940 fiscal year, the deficiency funds would bring the total cost of armament for the year to nearly $2,000,000,000.

Both the budget bureau of the navy and army are preparing deficiency requests, it was said, and they will be transmitted to congress by the President when the special session starts next Thursday.

The army, it was said, will need $54,000,000 and the navy $58,- 000,000 over and above sums already earmarked for national defense. Part of the navy funds will be used to recommission 41

American humane association ap-

DAVID NIVEN TO JOIN REGIMENT FOR WAR DUTY

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 15—David Niven, British film actor, will return to England in three weeks and rejoin his regiment.

Many rumors have been circulated about the date of Niven's departure from Hollywood but this news comes from the star himself, who revealed that he won't wait for the government to arrange transportation but will try to fly over on the Atlantic Clipper.

"This way, I will have a little time to myself in England before I report," he declared.

"But, for heaven's sake, don't make me out as a hero," he pleaded today. "I'm an officer in the reserve and I automatically go back into service. There are thousands of others in a worse spot than I am."

if it lasts five years, I probably can come back and resume my

HEAT FORCES SCHOOL CLOSING

Children Dismissed Early
When Mercury Soars To Century Mark

Terrific heat threatened Friday to send the mercury to the 100-mark for the second consecutive day. Heat Thursday sent Circleville school children home early in the afternoon and at night forecast many persons to cooler havens than bedrooms for their nightly slumbers.

The government thermometer in keeping of Miss Abbe Mills Clarke registered an even 100 degrees at the peak of the heat Thursday afternoon. This is a record for September 14, Miss Clarke declared. The reading was two degrees higher than the top reading in Columbus. The temperature fell to 73 degrees during the night.

The forecast for Friday was fair and warm with no immediate relief in sight, according to government observers. C. A. Dohnel, Chicago district forecaster, declared, that he hadn't much hope that cooler weather would arrive by Saturday.

Schools Dismissed

School Superintendent Frank
Fischer sent orders to all school principals Thursday afternoon to dismiss classes through the first six grades at 2:15 o'clock. "Many of the children appeared ill," the superintendent said, "because of the extreme heat. We decided that dismissal was the only solution."
None of the children required medical aid, the superintendent said. The upper grades were sent home at 3 o'clock, 45 minutes earlier than usual.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—Private

11,541, an all time high for the ed today.

The total was an increase of 16

BORAH LASHES AT REPEAL OF NEUTRALITY ACT

Idaho Senator Says Lifting Embargo Would Prove
War Partisanship

DECISION UP TO PEOPLE

Roosevelt To Make Plea For Change In Address To Special Session

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—The outstanding question of the forthcoming special session of Congress—shall the neutrality act's arms embargo be repealed?—will be carried to the people for a decisive answer.

Leaders in the battle to retain the present law, which prohibits shipments of arms, munitions and implements of war to warring nations, characterized the keynote speech of Senator Borah (R)
Idaho, last night as the first shot in their drive to bring the question into every home.

President Roosevelt is expected to draft a message to the special session which is designed to rally public sentiment behind a change in the law to permit sale of munitions to Great Britain and France in their struggle against Germany. The administration wants to open sale of American war supplies to both sides, provided the purchasers pay cash and carry away their purchases in their own ships.

Public To Decide

Administration forces claimed that the senate today stands almost two-to-one for repeal of the arms embargo. Foes of repeal, refusing to make an estimate of the senate's attitude, declared that public opinion will sway congress in the end.

Advocates of repeal of the arms embargo were swinging almost en masse toward substitution of the cash-and-carry system of selling arms. Under this system European warring nations could pay cash for munitions and transport them in their own ships.

Borah declared that repeal of the arms embargo means intervention in the conflict in Europe.
And, he said, if America intervenes by selling arms to one side, can it escape actual involvement in war?

"To those advocating repeal," Borah said, "I submit this question, is it not your main purpose in securing repeal to enable us to furnish arms, munitions and implements of war to one group of nations and to deny them to another group of nations, which groups are now in mortal combat?"

Cited As Intervention

"Is not this laying the foundation for intervention—in fact, is it not intervention—in the present European war?"

"Is it not your purpose to take sides through the authority which will be available when the em-

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—Miss Gertrude Jones, of Findlay, a graduate of fashionable Bryn Mawr school for girls and widely-known Republican state committee woman, today was named a member and chairman of the State civil service commission by Governor Bricker.

The 47-year-old daughter of the late George Jones, Findlay banker, thus became the first woman to be appointed to a major state
post since Bricker took office.
Named for a four-year term to the $4,000-a-year job, she succeeds
Ralph W. Emmons, of East Rochester, whose term expired August 30. As chairman she replaces Carl Smith, Kenton Democrat, who still has a year to serve on the commission.

PROFITEERS TO BE TARGET FOR NATIONAL LAWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—Sentiment for anti-profiteering legislation in the coming session of congress, was revealed today as Attorney-General Frank Murphy sought to frame a law that would stand the test of the Supreme court.

While Murphy said that legislation will be sought only if existing anti-trust legislation proves ineffective, proposals were made that congress immediately take up the problem.

The attorney general disclosed that lawyers are studying the entire history of anti-profiteering legislation. Since the Lever World War Act was held invalid by the supreme court, the justice department lawyers are canvassing new means of reaching their objective.

Some sort of a legal yardstick to measure profiteering—and impose penalties for violation—is the aim of the department's lawyers.

Senator Neely (D) West Virginia, said action must be taken to prevent profiteering. Senator Bilbo (D) Mississippi, joined him
by saying:

"There may be legislation to protect the people against rackteering and gouging. However, farm prices have not risen anywhere near that stage. They are not near parity. Maybe the poor farmer will get a break."

The reading was two degrees higher than the top reading in Columbus. The temperature fell to 73 degrees during the night.

The forecast for Friday was fair and warm with no immediate relief in sight, according to government observers. C. A. Dohnel, Chicago district forecaster, declared, that he hadn't much hope that cooler weather would arrive by Saturday.

Schools Dismissed School Superintendent Frank Fischer sent orders to all school principals Thursday afternoon to dismiss classes through the first six grades at 2:15 o'clock. "Many of the children appeared ill," the superintendent said, "because of the extreme heat. We decided that dismissal was the only solution."

None of the children required medical aid, the superintendent said. The upper grades were sent home at 3 o'clock, 45 minutes earlier than usual.

GERTRUDE JONES APPOINTED TO STATE BOARD

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—Miss Gertrude Jones, of Findlay, a graduate of fashionable Bryn Mawr school for girls and widely-known Republican state committee woman, today was named a member and chairman of the State civil service commission by Governor Bricker.

The 47-year-old daughter of the late George Jones, Findlay banker, thus became the first woman to be appointed to a major state post since Bricker took office.

Named for a four-year term to the $4,000-a-year job, she succeeds Ralph W. Emmons, of East Rochester, whose term expired August 30. As chairman she replaces Carl Smith, Kenton Democrat, who still has a year to serve on the commission.

BORAH LASHES AT REPEAL OF NEUTRALITY ACT

Idaho Senator Says Lifting Embargo Would Prove War Partisanship

DECISION UP TO PEOPLE

Roosevelt To Make Plea For Change In Address To Special Session

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—The outstanding question of the forthcoming special session of Congress—shall the neutrality act's arms embargo be repealed?—will be carried to the people for a decisive answer.

Leaders in the battle to retain the present law, which prohibits shipments of arms, munitions and implements of war to warring nations, characterized the keynote speech of Senator Borah (R) Idaho, last night as the first shot in their drive to bring the question into every home.

President Roosevelt is expected to draft a message to the special session which is designed to rally public sentiment behind a change in the law to permit sale of munitions to Great Britain and France in their struggle against Germany. The administration wants to open sale of American war supplies to both sides, provided the purchasers pay cash and carry away their purchases in their own ships.

Public To Decide

Administration forces claimed that the senate today stands almost two-to-one for repeal of the arms embargo. Foes of repeal, refusing to make an estimate of the senate's attitude, declared that public opinion will sway congress in the end.

Advocates of repeal of the arms embargo were swinging almost en masse toward substitution of the cash-and-carry system of selling arms. Under this system European warring nations could pay cash for munitions and transport them in their own ships.

Borah declared that repeal of the arms embargo means intervention in the conflict in Europe. And, he said, if America intervenes by selling arms to one side, can it escape actual involvement in war?

"To those advocating repeal," Borah said, "I submit this question, is it not your main purpose in securing repeal to enable us to furnish arms, munitions and implements of war to one group of nations and to deny them to another group of nations, which groups are now in mortal combat?"

Cited As Intervention

"Is not this laying the foundation for intervention—in fact, is it not intervention—in the present European war?"

"Is it not your purpose to take sides through the authority which will be available when the embargo is lifted?" (Continued on Page Four)

Berlin Launches Its Greatest Diplomatic Offensive Of Warfare

INVADERS CAPTURE LWOW

French Retreat Reported In Saar, But Paris Claims Continued Advance

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 15—Soviet Russia has definitely decided to attack the Polish army east of the Vistula River as soon as Russian mobilization is completed, the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Politiken asserted today.

Russo-German conferences for the eventual partition of Poland are progressing satisfactorily in Berlin, the correspondent said.

PARIS, Sept. 15—Capture of Lwow (Lemberg) by the Germans was reported in German broadcasts picked up here today.

Communications between Southern Poland and Roumania have been cut off, the report said. Polish circles in Paris had no confirmation of the German claims.

BERLIN, Sept. 15—German guns, hammering day and night at the French troops below the Saarland, have pushed a French column off Reich soil, according to today's military communiqué.

"German artillery forced the French to retreat to the border from Schweig south of Firmasens," the bulletin said.

LONDON, Sept. 15—The German Air Force has launched bombardment of open towns in Poland in a campaign "assuming the character of systematic destruction of all built-up areas unconnected with military operations," the Polish government charged today.

Assertion that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler had made good his threat to wreak vengeance on the civilian population for the activities of snipers in occupied areas was made in an official communiqué broadcast by the Polish Telegraphic agency in Warsaw.

By International News Service

Germany today launched her greatest diplomatic offensive in this war which seems to be slow in getting under way in the Rhineland, but which has cost the lives and liberty of many thousands of Poles as vast German fingers clutched deeper into Poland.

Reich Admits War

At last beginning to recognize that the French and British are in earnest in their determination to make no peace with a country governed by Adolf Hitler, the Reich abruptly swung towards alliance with Soviet Russia in a deal for a fourth and "final" partition of Poland.

France's careful campaign to straighten out her lines in the no-man's-land between the Maginot Line and the German Westwall continued successfully, and some reports said the British expedition (Continued on Page Four)

JAPAN DEMANDS BRITISH TROOPS QUIT SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15—In a new campaign for control of China's greatest port, Japanese military and naval authorities today demanded that British troops turn over their defense sector on the border of the International Settlement within a month.

American marines and army soldiers have a similar sector on the International Settlement's border in Shanghai to defend. It has been the scene of frequent "incidents," in which the American command bluntly has warned off Japanese troops trying to "invade" the area.

European Warring Nations Receive Stern Warning From Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—The United States today served notice on Europe's warring nations to keep "hands off" American shipping.

Coincidentally, the administration charted a course for congressional approval to prevent any possibility of American involvement in the "second world war" through incidents on the high seas.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared the United States will reserve all its rights as a neutral under international law. Hull's public declaration insisted that the American government could not recognize the right of any belligerent (Continued on Page Four)

PROFITEERS TO BE TARGET FOR NATIONAL LAWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—Sentiment for anti-profiteering legislation in the coming session of congress, was revealed today as Attorney-General Frank Murphy sought to frame a law that would stand the test of the Supreme court.

While Murphy said that legislation will be sought only if existing anti-trust legislation proves ineffective, proposals were made that congress immediately take up the problem.

The attorney general disclosed that lawyers are studying the entire history of anti-profiteering legislation. Since the Lever World War Act was held invalid by the supreme court, the justice department lawyers are canvassing new means of reaching their objective.

Some sort of a legal yardstick to measure profiteering—is the aim of the department's lawyers.

Senator Neely (D) West Virginia, said action must be taken to prevent profiteering. Senator Bilbo (D) Mississippi, joined him by saying:

"There may be legislation to protect the people against racketeering and gouging. However, farm prices have not risen anywhere near that stage. They are not near parity. Maybe the poor farmer will get a break."

BRICKER GIVES PROOF OF OHIO ECONOMY PLAN

Even Political Foes Admit Governor Intends To Fulfill Promises

JOBLESS G. O. P. ARE HURT

Hundreds Of Republicans
Must Now Look Elsewhere
Than States For Pay

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—Skeptical Democrats and disgruntled jobless Republicans who contended that Governor Bricker's "economy" program was just so much "campaign talk" have been forced to admit the chief executive apparently intends to carry out platform promises to curtail state expenditures.

Doubt on that point virtually was erased several days ago when Bricker declared he saw no reason for a special session of the legislature in the near future, or perhaps even next year.

Opponents might have branded such a declaration as "wishful thinking" but for the fact he then named Rep. R. R. Bangham, of Wilmington, state finance director, taking him away from the vital chairmanship of the House finance committee, where he would be needed should the lawmakers meet in extra session.

Bangham On Job

Bangham played an important part when the biennial budget was prepared. When he assumed his new duties he intimated he intended to keep a tight rein on the state's purse strings by announcing the administration planned to continue operating on a limited budget unless a real emergency arose.

That means hundreds of jobless Republicans who thought they "earned" positions during the campaign last year will have to hunt elsewhere. And Democrats are not happy because they know GOP candidates for re-election will capitalize on any record of savings affected.

Democratic leaders have attempted repeatedly to discount administration economy claims, branding them "savings on paper." However, impartial observers give the administration some credit for these obvious facts:

Personnel Reduced

That personnel and payrolls in many departments have been cut. While hundreds of provisional civil service employees appointed during the administration of former Governor Davey have been dismissed. All have not been replaced by Republicans.

That the liquor department has reduced rents on a number of stores in various cities, and that the state highway patrol is attempting to do the same thing.

That the highway department is buying "hot mix" for roads at a much lower price than it was purchased previously.

That many Republican county chairmen have expressed disapproval of the way Bricker has "neglected" supporters who thought they should have jobs.

Sniping Continues

Meanwhile, "sniping" continues between officials in the statehouse and Democrats outside. Secretary of State Earl Griffith has been in the thick of the battle. He was responsible for the grand jury investigation into alleged election irregularities in predominantly Democratic

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15—The breakup of Germany into numerous small independent units as she was before Bismarck was seen today by Louis Bromfield, lecturer, traveler and author of the best selling novel, "The Rains Came."

Bromfield, former newspaperman who returned to his native Mansfield a year ago after ten years in France, made the prediction at a dinner preceding a press preview of the movie adaptation of his novel.

France and England have set out to destroy Germany because they recognize the state as a menace that must be removed, Bromfield stated.

"In both countries this is a popular war," he said. "England and France are at war because the people wish it. They are tired of appeasement and crisis after crisis."

The only reason Germany is under arms is because she was outnumbered by Stalin, Bromfield said.

"Germany is the only enemy Russia has in Europe," he continued. "I am convinced that Russia signed the non-aggression pact with Germany for no other reason than to lead the Nazis into war with France and Britain so they might destroy Germany."

Bromfield stated that he was firmly convinced that internal unrest would destroy Germany, and

BASS SHIPMENT TO BE RELEASED IN DARBY CREEK

Darby Creek, one of Pickaway County's finest fishing streams, will be stocked Sunday with a shipment of bass from Wisconsin. Earl A. Smith, South Court Street attorney, received a letter Friday from the Department of the Interior, La Crosse, Wis., informing him that two 5 gallon cans containing bass will arrive in Circleville Sunday for distribution. Mr. Smith made application last fall for the bass in the name of the local sportsmen's league. He has not been informed whether the bass will be fingerlings or matured, but since they come from Wisconsin he believes they will be mature fish. The number of fish to be received is uncertain, also, since their size will determine the number.

The State Conservation Department has given permission to some Circleville sportsmen after application by James Stout, East Main Street automobile dealer, to remove an old tree from the mouth of Hargus Creek. The tree is causing the mouth of the creek to fill. Dynamite will probably be used to remove the dead tree.

BASS SHIPMENT TO BE RELEASED IN DARBY CREEK

Darby Creek, one of Pickaway County's finest fishing streams, will be stocked Sunday with a shipment of bass from Wisconsin. Earl A. Smith, South Court Street attorney, received a letter Friday from the Department of the Interior, La Crosse, Wis., informing him that two 5 gallon cans containing bass will arrive in Cincinnati Sunday for distribution.

Mr. Smith made application last fall for the bass in the name of the local sportsmen's league. He has not been informed whether the bass will be fingerlings or matured, but since they come from Wisconsin he believes they will be mature fish. The number of fish to be released is uncertain, also, since their size will determine the number.

The State Conservation Department has given permission to some Cincinnati sportsmen after application by James Stout, East Main Street automobile dealer, to remove an old tree from the mouth of Hargus Creek. The tree is causing the mouth of the creek to fill. Dynamite will probably be used to remove the dead tree.

FIRST OF NEW SOY BEAN CROP HITS MARKET

Extreme Heat Results In Rapid Ripening Of Product In District

PURINA GETS SHIPMENT

Eshelman Mill Delayed In Acceptance As Result Of Fire Damage

First of the new soybean crop has started to pour into the Ralston-Purina Co. mill, South Court Street, with the farm of Dr. B. R. Bales, in Pickaway Township again being the first to sell its 1939 yield. The Bales farm was also first last year, John Duval is the tenant on the property.

Purina company officials said Friday that they will receive their first carload of soybeans Friday evening from the New Holland elevator.

The soybean crop is being harvested about two weeks earlier than usual, the crop ripening very fast in the extreme heat. In many communities the soybean harvest and corn cutting are running hand in hand.

The Purina plant uses five soybean expellers and processes between 3,300 and 3,400 bushels of beans daily. During the course of a bean season approximately 1,000,000 bushels of the beans are handled.

Doubling Capacity

The company is building new soybean meal storage buildings that will more than double the present capacity. At present 150 tons of meal may be stored. After the new bins are completed the capacity will be about 350 tons. The John W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co., scene of a disastrous fire earlier in the week, has been delayed in its soybean operations. The Eshelman company has two expellers and handles many bushels of the beans, but nothing can be done there until the fire damage has been cleared away. R. D. Musser, company manager, said Friday that salvage work is progressing very well. He said that many more grain bins were blown out than company officials had estimated and that repairs in this part of the plant will require probably a month.

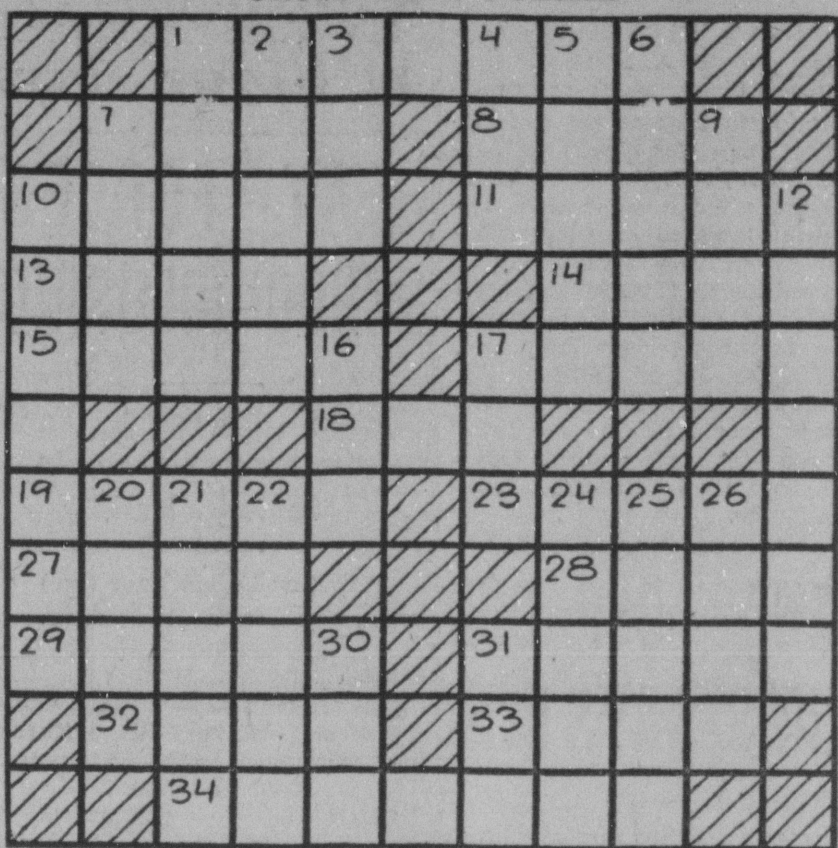

Musser declared, however, that most of the company's workmen will be able to return to their jobs not later than Monday. Many are helping in the salvage work.

Major County Crop

Soybeans have become a major cash crop for Pickaway County farmers. Since the Purina and Eshelman mills have located in Circleville and provided an outlet for the farmer's product the industry has grown by leaps and bounds. The county is still unable, however, to supply all the soybeans the two milling companies require, many being shipped in from northern Ohio. The northern district's harvest is several weeks later than Circleville's.

The cash price for soybeans on the Circleville market Friday was 70 cents a bushel.

QUESTION: A lot of my annual flowers have gone to seed. Should I let these seeds scatter, should I save them, or should I burn them.

ANSWER: Many annual flowers will come true to seed and the calendula, cornflower, California poppy, larkspur, cosmos, Nigella, poppy, snapdragon, and the smaller flowered varieties of petunias, and often a number of others will self-sow and come up next year. Provided you do not save your seed over too long a period of years, you will find that it will be satisfactory to save your own seed for at least two or three years. May I suggest that you try sowing the seed of some of these normally self-sown varieties now. The seedlings will come up and many of them will live over winter.

QUESTION: I wish to plant some roses this fall. How soon may I do this?

ANSWER: The nurserymen who are growing roses or rose specialists recommend that you do not plant roses until later this fall, after all growth has stopped. This will usually be the latter half of November. If you attempt to plant them now I believe you will find them much more difficult to carry through the winter successfully.

QUESTION: I wish to plant some tulips and daffodils this fall and would like to know how soon I can plant them.

ANSWER: You can plant any of the spring flowering bulbs just as soon as you can buy them this fall. Those with small bulbs such as the squills, crocus, hyacinths, winter aconities, and others should be planted just as soon as possible.

QUESTION: What kind of tulips would you recommend that I plant? I wish to use them in my perennial borders along with other flowers.

ANSWER: For early bloom I would recommend some of the single early tulips. For later bloom, depending upon your personal choice, you could either buy individual varieties or good mixtures of Darwins, Breeders, and Cottage tulips. I would suggest planting these in informal masses of 12 to 25 of a kind.

QUESTION: What perennials can I grow that will give me bloom at this time of year?

ANSWER: Among others, I would especially recommend the hardy begonia (Begonia evansiana), the mist flower (Eupatorium), Japanese anemone, Arctic and Korean chrysanthemums, purple coneflowers, hardy asters including Aster frikartii, the hybrid coneflower (Rudbeckia hirta hybrida) and Cicimifuga simplex. In addition to these early spring sown delphiniums usually give a nice crop of bloom at this time of the year. Gladiolus planted in late branch spread of the tree. The holes may be made either with a crowbar or with a soil auger.

QUESTION: Is it true that rose bushes with branches bearing seven leaves do not bear roses?

ANSWER: It is not true and, if they have seven leaves and do not bloom, look into the culture they have received. Ask your county agent for a copy of the garden roses bulletin.

tionary force was active for the first time.

With cascades of shells showering death on either side, French quarters said their grip was closing on Saarbrücken as the Germans fell back.

Poles Hard Pressed
Germany's forked lightning darted on Warsaw, Lwow, and towards Brest-Litovsk, but of major importance was the understanding in Berlin that Germany has approved Soviet claims on Poland as they stood when the treaty of Brest-Litovsk was signed in 1918 and Russia, running out of shells packed with sawdust, backed out of the World War.

German diplomacy throws back precisely a century to the Congress of Vienna, when the boundaries of the Duchy of Poland, as a part of Russia, were established. These lines were left in the short-lived treaty which the new Bolshevik government was forced to sign under humiliating conditions after Leon Trotsky left the Brest-Litovsk conference in disgust and indignation. Germany was compelled to eradicate the pact when she was brought to her knees at Versailles the next year.

Seeks Aid Of Reds
Now Germany, seeking to enlist the aid of the Soviets, offers the same terms—with the major exception, that the creation of a buffer state under German and Russian suzerainty is proposed.

Germany, according to these suggestions, would take approximately the same areas as Prussia held after Vienna in 1839 and which were integral parts of Germany in 1914 including the Polish Corridor and the Silesian industrial region of southwestern Poland, taking in the great cities of Lodz, Posen, and Cracow—historic capital of the Polish kings.

Russia, which with Italy is the great unknown quantity in the European war, has proved somewhat receptive to the German idea.

Poland Assailed
Poland was assailed in the official Soviet organ Pravda for alleged maltreatment of her minorities.

Moreover, Berlin pointed to the important conversations which have been going on in the German capital with General Maxim Litvinov.

"Positive questions" have been discussed by the Russian emissary and his aides with high German military officers, Berlin said.

Russia, perhaps still wondering which way to jump, has massed troops on the Polish frontier—either, as the Germans say, to march in soon or to make sure that Germany does not succeed in her attempts to create a Polish Ukrainian republic which might threaten the Russian Ukraine.

Soviets Not Forgetful
The Soviets are not forgetful of "Mein Kampf," which still calls for the "drive towards the East," including the Russian Ukraine.

London reports from Berlin via Copenhagen said circles close to the German government confidently expect the Russians to invade Poland as soon as the Polish army's resistance finally is shattered.

The London News-Chronicle said that any Russo-German understanding was a "matter of speculation," but that in any case such an arrangement involved abandonment of the principles of Hitler's "Mein Kampf," and tends to "confirm the belief in Berlin" that Rumania is the next German objective.

Bleakness descended on the Western front, with raindrops falling among the bombs and shells. German artillery aimed at French lines of communication, while the French reported further local progress in the Saarbrücken area "in the course of which we took prisoners."

Britain, reemphasizing that civilians would be attacked only if Germany resorted to ruthless warfare on "open" towns, stated once more, through Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, that she was ready to fight the war to the bitter end.

BORAH LASHES AT REPEAL OF NEUTRALITY ACT

bargo law is repealed? And if the purpose of repeal is to do these things, and we do them, is not neutrality broken down, destroyed, and are we not thenceforth by every rule of international law, by every dictate of common sense and common honesty, parties to a European conflict?

"Do you think the time has come when for reasons of humanity, or of national defense, we should take our place in another European war? I feel we are really considering the broad question of whether we are justified as a people, in intervening in this conflict and meet the issues as they are being presented upon the battlefields of Europe, for we cannot escape that destination if we move along the lines now proposed."

Support for Repeal
Meantime additional support for the administration's repeal move came from southern senators. Both Senators Harrison and Bilbo, Mississippi Democrats, agreed to support the administration.

In response to claims that the senate overwhelmingly favors lifting the embargo, Borah pointed out that but four senators were opposed to the League of Nations when that historic battle started. After long debate, the league plan was defeated.

"Both as a matter of morals and as a sovereign right, we had the undoubted right to establish this policy of declining the sale of arms, munitions and implements of war to any nation engaged in war," Borah said.

"It is now proposed to repeal it to enable this government to furnish arms to one side and to withhold them from the other. Undoubtedly, as I say, we have the right to repeal the law. But when we couple the repeal with the announced and declared program of furnishing arms and munitions to one side and withholding them from the other, such a program will unquestionably constitute intervention in the present conflict in Europe."

JAIL BREAK AT CHILLICOTHE IS FRUSTRATED

CHILLICOTHE, Sept. 15—An attempt by two Oak Hill, O., men, suspected of transporting a stolen automobile from Michigan to Ohio, to escape the Ross County jail was frustrated Thursday evening by Deputies Don F. Lowery and O. A. Maughmer.

Ernest Caldwell, 23, one of the suspects, grabbed Lowery's pistol from his holster after the deputy had called him to the search room for questioning and had turned to lock the jail cell door. Lowery and Caldwell were tussling when Deputy Maughmer went to his colleague's aid.

Caldwell pulled the trigger of the pistol just as Maughmer arrived, the bullet passing through the deputy's right trouser leg near the side pocket and inflicting a surface wound about an inch long. Discharge of the revolver took all fight from the suspect.

BANDITS GET $18,000 In ILLINOIS PAY ROLL RAID

NAPERVILLE, Ill., Sept. 15—Bandits roared into Naperville in a high powered car today and with revolvers drawn robbed the Korchler Furniture Manufacturing Company plant office of an $18,000 cash payroll.

The robbers escaped in their auto, heading towards Chicago, 40 miles distant.

Mission a Mystery

SPACE PETITIONS FOR FALL SHOW FLOOD PARRETT

Mack Parrett, Jr., secretary of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society, Pumpkin Show sponsors, said Friday that applications for space are coming in steadily despite boost in the price for concession room.

Parrett declared that the number of concessionaires applying was at least equal with the number in recent years. "We'll have all space gone before the show arrives," the secretary said.

Pumpkin Show directors decided to boost the rate per square foot from $2 to $3 in an effort to raise more revenue for the festival and to eliminate many of the cheaper concessions. This increase hasn't cut the number of concession operators very much, Parrett said. He reported that only a few persons, two of them from out of the state, had decided not to come to Circleville because of the price of space.

Parrett and Dan McClain, the latter parade director of the show, plan to go to Williamsport Saturday to address Pickaway County school teachers concerning the Pumpkin Show. Parade officials are seeking an entry from each school in the beauty event and in the healthiest boy and girl competition.

AYRES SEES NO BUSINESS DROP

Decline Recorded In 1914 Will Not Be Repeated, Economist Believes

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15 — It is impossible to predict the course of American business during the remaining months of this year, but the decline that accompanied the first months of the last war is not likely to be repeated, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist and vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., said today.

Ayres predicted that the war would cause a decrease in the price of high grade bonds, and stocks may continue to advance. Industrial production may well increase rapidly, as it did in 1915 and 1916, Ayres said.

Ayres also pointed to the change in comparative per capita income in this country and others. In 1929, he said, the per capita income of two typical Americans was equal to that of three average Britons or five Germans. Today per capita income of the average citizen of the three countries is about equal because of work on munitions.

Police are still watching out for an accomplice who fled when police surrounded the milling company office.

FAYETTE COUNTEY HELD FOR FEDERAL OFFENSE

Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood today sentenced Howard Williamson, Fayette County, to two years in prison for violation of the Dyer Act, making it a Federal offense to transport a stolen automobile across state lines. Williamson was turned over to Federal authorities by officials of Ohio Penitentiary where he had just completed a sentence for burglary.

ELMER GAREN INJURED IN TILT WITH INMATES

LANCASTER, Sept. 15—Elmer Garen, farm boss at the Ohio industrial school for boys, near Lancaster, today suffered from a broken hand after a fight with two youthful inmates of the institution. Garen was struck with a club swung by Charles McLaughlin, 17, of Canton. McLaughlin's mate in the escape attempt was John Lamb, 18, of Toledo.

Garen subdued the youth after he was struck. He and Joe Rockey, school guard, caught Lamb. Both boys were returned to their dormitories.

gerent to interfere with its shipping on the high seas.

He issued his statement in clarification of American policy on the stopping, search, and in some cases, seizure, of American cargoes in the war in Europe.

"This government... reserves all rights of the United States and its nationals under international law and will adopt such measures as may seem most practical and prudent when those rights are violated by the belligerents," Hull declared.

The statement, following interference with American shipping by both Great Britain and Germany, was aimed at preventing incidents similar to the earlier phases of the first world war which brought acrimonious exchanges with Great Britain, and ultimately led to war against Germany.

Hull told European belligerents that the United States, in an effort to avoid breaches of neutrality, had voluntarily adopted certain restrictions for its citizens and vessels in traveling in war zones. These, Hull reminded, were set forth in President Roosevelt's proclamation of neutrality last week.

But this does not, he said, mean that the United States has recognized any modification of international law. Any such modification must, he insisted, await action by congress.

"The government of the United States has not abandoned any of its rights as a neutral under international law," Hull declared. "This government, adhering as it does to these principles (of international law), reserves all rights of the United States and its nationals under international law and will adopt such measures as may seem most practical and prudent when those rights are violated by any of the belligerents."

School men intimated that more dismissals will be ordered if the heat continues to be so intense.

Heat Is General

The torrid wave has enveloped the great Middlewest from the Rockies to the Appalachian mountains. Records that have existed since 1897 have been shattered. Government records show that on that date the mercury reached 97 degrees. Thursday's reading in Circleville was three degrees higher than that mark.

Farm officials shake their heads when they visit pastures in the Central Ohio district, damage being widespread over the entire district. Corn and alfalfa have suffered intensely because of the heat and the lack of moisture.

SHERIFF ASKED TO AID IN HUNT FOR FUGITIVE

Sheriff's deputies were asked Friday by Ohio reformatory officials at Mansfield to watch for Albert Gloyd, former Ashville resident, who fled the institution last week end. Gloyd has been an inmate of the reformatory for the last seven years although he was paroled once and later returned as a parole violator.

Gloyd was only 19 years old when he was sent to the reformatory for breaking into the George Hook store in Ashville. That was August 16, 1932. He was paroled September 1, 1935, but was arrested the next May 5 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Gloyd was returned to Mansfield at that time and had remained there until his escape.

Mansfield authorities said that he was to have been released on parole October 1. Pickaway County sheriff's deputies declare that they understood he was to be up for parole October 1 instead of being freed on that date.

destroyers now in the old "ghost fleet" of World War vintage. In disarmament after "World War number 1," the destroyers were allowed to stand idle.

When recommissioned, the destroyers will be attached to the Atlantic fleet to help in patrol work, to carry out President Roosevelt's order for establishment of an air and sea patrol extending 200 miles into the ocean separating this continent from war-torn Europe.

The fund will also allow increase in navy personnel from 116,000 to 145,000 enlisted men, and an increase in the Marine Corps from 18,500 to 25,000 men.

A large share of the army's deficiency appropriation will be used in purchase of artillery, particularly anti-aircraft guns. The latter will be stationed at strategic points along the American shores, and near America's large cities. A quantity of new automatic rifles for the infantry also may be bought.

With the funds, army personnel will be brought up from 180,000 to 220,585, which, with enlistment of 6,415 Philippine Scouts, will bring total army strength up to 227,000 by next June 30. National Guard strength will be increased from 190,000 to 235,000 men.

The increases were authorized in the President's recent emergency proclamation. The first step in carrying them out will be the request for funds. Later, the President, if conditions become more acute, can increase the national guard to 424,800 men, the army to 280,000, the navy to 191,000 and the Marine Corps to 38,200.

BORAH LASHES AT REPEAL OF NEUTRALITY ACT

bargo law is repealed? And if the purpose of repeal is to do these things, and we do them, is not neutrality broken down, destroyed, and are we not thenceforth by every rule of international law, by every dictate of common sense and common honesty, parties to a European conflict?

"Do you think the time has come when for reasons of humanity, or of national defense, we should take our place in another European war? I feel we are really considering the broad question of whether we are justified as a people, in intervening in this conflict and meet the issues as they are being presented upon the battlefields of Europe, for we cannot escape that destination if we move along the lines now proposed."

Support for Repeal

Meantime additional support for the administration's repeal move came from southern senators. Both Senators Harrison and Bilbo, Mississippi Democrats, agreed to support the administration.

In response to claims that the senate overwhelmingly favors lifting the embargo, Borah pointed out that but four senators were opposed to the League of Nations when that historic battle started. After long debate, the league plan was defeated.

"Both as a matter of morals and as a matter of international law, as a sovereign right, we had the undoubted right to establish this policy of declining the sale of arms, munitions and implements of war to any nation engaged in war," Borah said.

"It is now proposed to repeal it to enable this government to furnish arms to one side and to withhold them from the other. Undoubtedly, as I say, we have the right to repeal the law. But when we coupled the repeal with the announced and declared program of furnishing arms and munitions to one side and withholding them from the other, such a program will unquestionably constitute intervention in the present conflict in Europe."

JAIL BREAK AT CHILLICOTHE IS FRUSTRATED

CHILLICOTHE, Sept. 15—An attempt by two Oak Hill, O., men, suspected of transporting a stolen automobile from Michigan to Ohio, to escape the Ross County jail was frustrated Thursday evening by Deputies Don F. Lowery and O. A. Maughmer.

Ernest Caldwell, 23, one of the suspects, grabbed Lowery's pistol from its holster after the deputy had called him to the search room for questioning and had turned to lock the jail cell door. Lowery and Caldwell were tussling when Deputy Maughmer went to his colleague's aid.

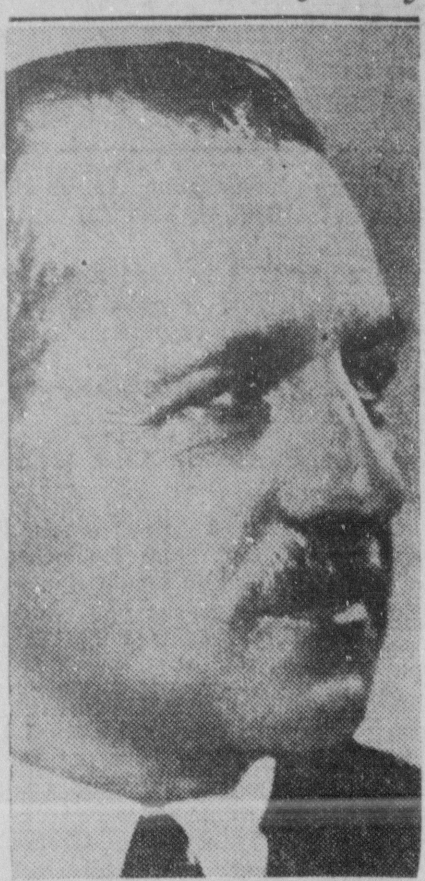

Caldwell pulled the trigger of the pistol just as Maughmer arrived, the bullet passing through the deputy's right trouser leg near the side pocket and inflicting a surface wound about an inch long. Discharge of the revolver took all fight from the suspect.

NAPERVILLE, Ill., Sept. 15—Bandits roared into Naperville in a high powered car today and with revolvers drawn robbed the Kohler Furniture Manufacturing Company plant office of an $18,000 cash payroll.

The robbers escaped in their auto, heading towards Chicago, 40 miles distant.

Mission a Mystery

SPACE PETITIONS FOR FALL SHOW FLOOD PARRETT

Mack Parrett, Jr., secretary of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society, Pumpkin Show sponsors, said Friday that applications for space are coming in steadily despite boost in the price for concession room.

Parrett declared that the number of concessionaires applying was at least equal with the number in recent years. "We'll have all space gone before the show arrives," the secretary said.

Pumpkin Show directors decided to boost the rate per square foot from $2 to $3 in an effort to raise more revenue for the festival and to eliminate many of the cheaper concessions. This increase hasn't cut the number of concession operators very much, Parrett said. He reported that only a few persons, two of them from out of the state, had decided not to come to Circleville because of the price of space.

Parrett and Dan McClain, the latter parade director of the show, plan to go to Williamsport Saturday to address Pickaway County school teachers concerning the Pumpkin Show. Parade officials are seeking an entry from each school in the beauty event and in the healthiest boy and girl competition.

AYRES SEES NO BUSINESS DROP

Decline Recorded In 1914 Will Not Be Repeated, Economist Believes

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15 — It is impossible to predict the course of American business during the remaining months of this year, but the decline that accompanied the first months of the last war is not likely to be repeated, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist and vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., said today.

Ayres predicted that the war would cause a decrease in the price of high grade bonds, and stocks may continue to advance. Industrial production may well increase rapidly, as it did in 1915 and 1916, Ayres said.

Ayres also pointed to the change in comparative per capita income in this country and others. In 1929, he said, the per capita income of two typical Americans was equal to that of three average Britons or five Germans. Today per capita income of the average citizen of the three countries is about equal because of work on munitions.

Jackim has refused to talk to Circleville police or to Akron and Cleveland detectives who have attempted to question him concerning his recent activities. The Youngstown man was released last December from the Moundsville, W. Va., penitentiary.

Police are still watching out for an accomplice who fled when police surrounded the milling company office.

FAYETTE COUNTEY HELD FOR FEDERAL OFFENSE

Federal Judge Moll G. Underwood today sentenced Howard Williamson, Fayette County, to two years in prison for violation of the Dyer Act, making it a Federal offense to transport a stolen automobile across state lines. Williamson was turned over to Federal authorities by officials of Ohio Penitentiary where he had just completed a sentence for burglary.

ELMER GAREN INJURED IN TILT WITH INMATES

LANCASTER, Sept. 15—Elmer Garen, farm boss at the Ohio industrial school for boys, near Lancaster, today suffered from a broken hand after a fight with two youthful inmates of the institution. Garen was struck with a club swung by Charles McLaughlin, 17, of Canton. McLaughlin's mate in the escape attempt was John Lamb, 18, of Toledo.

Garen subdued the youth after he was struck. He and Joe Rockey, school guard, caught Lamb. Both boys were returned to their dormitories.

gerent to interfere with its shipping on the high seas.

He issued his statement in clarification of American policy on the stopping, search, and in some cases, seizure, of American cargoes in the war in Europe.

"This government... reserves all rights of the United States and its nationals under international law and will adopt such measures as may seem most practical and prudent when those rights are violated by the belligerents," Hull declared.

The statement, following interference with American shipping by both Great Britain and Germany, was aimed at preventing incidents similar to the earlier phases of the first world war which brought acrimonious exchanges with Great Britain, and ultimately led to war against Germany.

Hull told European belligerents that the United States, in an effort to avoid breaches of neutrality, had voluntarily adopted certain restrictions for its citizens and vessels in traveling in war zones. These, Hull reminded, were set forth in President Roosevelt's proclamation of neutrality last week.

But this does not, he said, mean that the United States has recognized any modification of international law. Any such modification must, he insisted, await action by congress.

"The government of the United States has not abandoned any of its rights as a neutral under international law," Hull declared. "This government, adhering as it does to these principles (of international law), reserves all rights of the United States and its nationals under international law and will adopt such measures as may seem most practical and prudent when those rights are violated by any of the belligerents."

permission from the office of County Superintendent George McDowell.

School men intimated that more dismissals will be ordered if the heat continues to be so intense.

Heat Is General

The torrid wave has enveloped the great Middlewest from the Rockies to the Appalachian mountains. Records that have existed since 1897 have been shattered. Government records show that on that date the mercury reached 97 degrees. Thursday's reading in Circleville was three degrees higher than that mark.

Farm officials shake their heads when they visit pastures in the Central Ohio district, damage being widespread over the entire district. Corn and alfalfa have suffered intensely because of the heat and the lack of moisture.

SHERIFF ASKED TO AID IN HUNT FOR FUGITIVE

Sheriff's deputies were asked Friday by Ohio reformatory officials at Mansfield to watch for Albert Gloyd, former Ashville resident, who fled the institution last week end. Gloyd has been an inmate of the reformatory for the last seven years although he was paroled once and later returned as a parole violator.

Gloyd was only 19 years old when he was sent to the reformatory for breaking into the George Hook store in Ashville. That was August 16, 1932. He was paroled September 1, 1935, but was arrested the next May 5 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Gloyd was returned to Mansfield at that time and had remained there until his escape.

Mansfield authorities said that he was to have been released on parole October 1. Pickaway County sheriff's deputies declare that they understood he was to be up for parole October 1 instead of being freed on that date.

destroyers now in the old "ghost fleet" of World War vintage. In disarmament after "World War number 1," the destroyers were allowed to stand idle.

When recommissioned, the destroyers will be attached to the Atlantic fleet to help in patrol work, to carry out President Roosevelt's order for establishment of an air and sea patrol extending 200 miles into the ocean separating this continent from war-torn Europe.

The fund will also allow increase in navy personnel from 116,000 to 145,000 enlisted men, and an increase in the Marine Corps from 18,500 to 25,000 men.

A large share of the army's deficiency appropriation will be used in purchase of artillery, particularly anti-aircraft guns. The latter will be stationed at strategic points along the American shores, and near America's large cities. A quantity of new automatic rifles for the infantry also may be bought.

With the funds, army personnel will be brought up from 180,000 to 220,585, which, with enlistment of 6,415 Philippine Scouts, will bring total army strength up to 227,000 by next June 30. National Guard strength will be increased from 190,000 to 235,000 men.

The increases were authorized in the President's recent emergency proclamation. The first step in carrying them out will be the request for funds. Later, the President, if conditions become more acute, can increase the national guard to 424,800 men, the army to 280,000, the navy to 191,000 and the Marine Corps to 38,200.

ANNUAL LOGAN ELM FESTIVAL PLANS OUTLINED

Jesse Cornplanter, Famous Indian, Will Be Among Big Attractions

RED MAN SONGS FEATURED

Speaker For Day Not Yet Chosen By Program Chief David Crouse

Officials of the Ohio History Day Association, which annually arranges a celebration at Logan Elm State Park on the first Sunday in October, are busy preparing for the festival that attracts several thousand persons. Mrs. Howard Jones, Park Place, is president of the association and annually takes a leading role in celebration of Ohio History Day.

One of the outstanding attractions on the program this year will be Jesse J. Cornplanter, a resident of the Tonawanda Indian Reservation, Basmo, N. Y. Cornplanter, a descendant of the famous Indian of the same name who was active during Revolutionary days, is a recognized authority on the Iroquois Tribe. He has written several books which have enjoyed widespread circulation. He has done drawings on Indian lore for several publications.

Mrs. Irene S. McKinley of Columbus, a member of the program committee for the History Day celebration, said that Cornplanter would arrange his own program, which will include many Indian songs.

Cornplanter boasts of a long military record including service with the 147th Infantry, 37th Division (Old Buckeye) in the World War. He served as corporal in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

The Indian has served with several theatrical units and has participated in numerous boys' camps as an instructor in Indian lore, archery and as an interpreter.

Cornplanter's Indian name is Ha Yonh Wanh Ish, Snake Clan, meaning "He Strikes the Reeds". Other parts of the program have not yet been announced, David Crouse, widely known Kingston author, being chairman of the program committee.

It is expected that Mr. Crouse will soon announce his featured speaker, who is expected to be a state official, and the music to be provided during the day.

Micah: A Messenger of Social Justice

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 17 is Micah 3: 1-12: 6:8, the Golden Text being Micah 6:8, "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God.")

By Newman Campbell

THE PROPHET Micah, subject of today's lesson, was a contemporary of Isaiah's. But while Isaiah lived in Jerusalem, Micah the Morasthite lived in Moresheth-gath, about 20 miles southwest of Jerusalem. He was a country dweller.

Micah, was said to be the first man in his world to announce his dream of universal peace. Rulers and princes oppressed the poor people, and in picturesque language Micah rebuked them and threatened them with ruin if they persisted in their evil ways.

"Hear, I pray you, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel; is it not for you to know judgement? Who hate the good and love the evil; who pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones." This language, of course, is his way of saying that the people were greatly oppressed to that they had nothing left and were cruelly treated. "They build up Zion with blood," he says, "and Jerusalem with iniquity."

Then he assailed the priests who, for the most part, were afraid to tell the princes and rulers of their wrong doing for fear they would lose favor and with it their soft living, their feasting and fees. These seers and prophets thought they were immune because they performed the rituals in the temple, although they did it but for money. Imagine what courage it must have taken for Micah to stand up before the rulers of his day, and even the preachers, and tell them they

Jesse Cornplanter, Famous Indian, Will Be Among Big Attractions

RED MAN SONGS FEATURED

Speaker For Day Not Yet Chosen By Program Chief David Crouse

Officials of the Ohio History Day Association, which annually arranges a celebration at Logan Elm State Park on the first Sunday in October, are busy preparing for the festival that attracts several thousand persons. Mrs. Howard Jones, Park Place, is president of the association and annually takes a leading role in celebration of Ohio History Day.

One of the outstanding attractions on the program this year will be Jesse J. Cornplanter, a resident of the Tonawanda Indian Reservation, Basmo, N. Y. Cornplanter, a descendant of the famous Indian of the same name who was active during Revolutionary days, is a recognized authority on the Iroquois Tribe. He has written several books which have enjoyed widespread circulation. He has done drawings on Indian lore for several publications.

Mrs. Irene S. McKinley of Columbus, a member of the program committee for the History Day celebration, said that Cornplanter would arrange his own program, which will include many Indian songs.

Cornplanter boasts of a long military record including service with the 147th Infantry, 37th Division (Old Buckeye) in the World War. He served as corporal in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

The Indian has served with several theatrical units and has participated in numerous boys' camps as an instructor in Indian lore, archery and as an interpreter.

Cornplanter's Indian name is Ha Yonh Wonh Ish, Snake Clan, meaning "He Strikes the Reeds".

Other parts of the program have not yet been announced. David Crouse, widely known Kingston author, being chairman of the program committee.

It is expected that Mr. Crouse will soon announce his featured speaker, who is expected to be a state official, and the music to be provided during the day.

Bustle Hat Comes Into Own

Some relief from war news and war pictures is this new turban, the bustle hat now coming into its own on the fashion horizon. Of course, Marilyn Stuart, radio actress, isn't hard to look at, either. The new hat combines black velvet with loops of powder blue velvet. The costume jewelry is a choker necklace of gold with a gold and pearl pendant set in blue cloisonne.

Micah: A Messenger of Social Justice

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 17 is Micah 3: 1-12: 6:6-8, the Golden Text being Micah 6:8, "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?")

By Newman Campbell

THE PROPHET Micah, subject of today's lesson, was a contemporary of Isaiah's. But while Isaiah lived in Jerusalem, Micah the Morasthite lived in Moresheth-gath, about 20 miles southwest of Jerusalem. He was a country dweller.

Micah, was said to be the first man in his world to announce his dream of universal peace. Rulers and princes oppressed the poor people, and in picturesque language Micah rebuked them and threatened them with ruin if they persisted in their evil ways.

"Hear, I pray you, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel; is it not for you to know judgement? Who hate the good and love the evil; who pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones." This language, of course, is his way of saying that the people were greatly oppressed to that they had nothing left and were cruelly treated. "They build up Zion with blood," he says, "and Jerusalem with iniquity."

Then he assailed the priests who, for the most part, were afraid to tell the princes and rulers of their wrong doing for fear they would lose favor and with it their soft living, their feasting and fees. These seers and prophets thought they were immune because they performed the rituals in the temple, although they did it but for money. Imagine what courage it must have taken for Micah to stand up before the rulers of his day, and even the preachers, and tell them they were wrong.

Toledo were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Vaughn.

Mrs. Roy Irvin visited Sunday and Monday with her sister, Mrs. Virgil Fannon of New Holland, who is a patient at Grant Hospital, Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Hughes of Williamsport were Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dennis and family were among the guests at a birthday dinner Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter and children of Washington C. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Canup were week end guests in Lynchburg of Peter Weishaup.

Mrs. Wendell Evans and son Harley were Monday and Tuesday guests at the home of Mrs. Evans' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick and daughter, Gretchen in Wilmington.

Mrs. Don Pfouts of Circleville spent last Thursday and Friday with her mother, Mrs. Stella Skinner, who has been ill.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clements of Circleville and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Clements were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bowman and son at Clarksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hayes of were terribly in the wrong and would suffer for it.

"Therefore night shall be unto you, that ye shall not have a vision; and it shall be dark unto you, and ye shall not divine; and the sun shall go down over the prophets, and the day shall be dark unto them," he warned.

"Hear, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob, and princes of the house of Israel, that judgment, and pervert all equity. They build up Zion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity. The heads thereof judge for reward, and the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof divine for money: Yet will they lean upon the Lord and say, 'Is not the Lord among us?' None evil can come upon us."

Doesn't this speech remind you of Jesus driving the money changers out of the temple, enraged that the House of God should be made a market place?

"Zion for your sake shall be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps," he tells them, because of their wrong doing.

Micah's dream of world peace he tells in the very familiar words: "And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; And they shall beat their plowshares into pruning hooks: Nations shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his fig tree: And none shall make them afraid: For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

Although little is known about this man Micah, his words will always live and bring help and comfort. How wise he was, and how well he knew what will truly bring happiness to mankind!

What Does God Require?

"What is it the Lord requires of thee?" he asks.

"Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before Him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?"

"He hath shown thee, O man, what is good; And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

With these early worshippers burnt offerings of animal flesh and fat and oil, and even that greatest of sacrifices, the first-born son were offered to appease the wrath of God, but Micah believed that the Lord of Hosts needed none of these things. Just being good—showing mercy when needed, being just and "walking humbly," not allowing pride to puff one up, no matter what happened, that is what God really wants of us, and no matter how humble we are or how great, young or old, we all can please Him thus.

TO FIREFIGHTERS

MEN: The congratulations of an entire community are yours because of the splendid work you did at the Eshelman Mill Tuesday evening when the most dangerous fire to strike Circleville in many years was put under control after many persons had almost given up hope that the flaming inferno could be stopped. It was a real job of firefighting, and the glad hand is extended to all of you for the work you did. Time after time when the going became difficult the thousands of spectators who watched your valiant effort to overcome the flames were thrilled at the way many of you scampered over the tops of the high milling company buildings to seek new ways to pour water into the flaming interior of the structure. Those same thousands could not see the other men deep on the inside of the plant, fighting for breath through dense smoke and never knowing when flames that might trap them would break out. All in all, it was a sweet piece of firefighting, one that should go down in the annals of Circleville's fire department as a masterpiece. Circleville residents and mill officials cannot be too free in expressing thanks to the Ashville department and to the Chillicothe and Columbus men who came to our city to help save the milling plant. The firemen performed their duties with businesslike precision. The employees of the Eshelman Mill who were equally as brave as the firemen were battling to save their jobs, because had the mill burned to the ground they would have been out of work for a long while. It takes time to erect a grain mill. A movement should be started right now to supply the Circleville fire department with much more modern equipment. The old pumper, bought in 1914 and used many, many times, should be put aside. A suggestion has been made that townships surrounding the county seat get together to subscribe to a fund which would be used to buy a small pumper to be used in case of emergency in all communities of the district. This plan has merit and something should be done about it. Anything that can be done to provide more modern fire protection for Circleville and its community should receive the 100 percent cooperation of all persons in the district. A fire might some day prove very disastrous to all of us unless our equipment is modernized, and at once!

TO METHODIST PASTORS

MINISTERS: All Methodists of the county join in greeting you back to your pulpits for another year of service to our community. The high esteem in which all of you are held by your congregations is evidenced by the fact that only two changes were made in the entire county and both of those in smaller churches. The success of the new Methodist Church, a combination of the Methodist Episcopal and the Methodist Protestant, is assured as long as the church maintains pastors of the caliber assigned to carry on the work of God in our Circleville and Pickaway County congregations.

TO FOOTBALL FANS

ENTHUSIASTS: Tonight you will be provided the first opportunity to watch the 1939 edition of Circleville High School's football team in action. Columbus Holy Rosary will provide the opposition with the first whistle to be sounded at 8 o'clock. Win, lose or draw the Tigers are our boys; they represent the Circleville High School, and they represent Circleville's many fine homes. It is up to parents, friends of the school and the student body to be on hand tonight when the kickoff is called. The more support that can be provided for the youthful athletes the better the team will play. Anyone can do better when he is able to hear the voices of friends cheering him on to better effort. The Columbus team, decked out in bright green uniforms, will provide quite a contrast to the red and black of the Tiger school. The lights of School Field should provide a fitting setting for the lidlifter. The boys coached by Roy M. Black and Tom Armstrong will be dressed in their finest, they will be putting forth their very best efforts, they will be trying to win for Circleville. Can't you be present to provide them with your support?

CIRCUITEER.

TO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

FRIENDS: The Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Association are taking steps to decorate Circleville in a suitable fashion for the annual Pumpkin Show, which opens in just a little over a month. They are planning to give a prize to the storekeeper whose place of business is best decorated inside and out for the big festival. The program should have your cooperation because it will help to make the fall event a better one. Congratulations go to you for election of Forrest Short as director of the horse division to succeed Elmer Wolf, whose health prevents him from serving again. Mr. Short has a background in the horse breeding industry that should help him in making the horse division a success. His father, the late Cary Short, enjoyed an international reputation in the horse trading and breeding business. His brother, Harry, is one of the best known horse handlers and trainers in Ohio. Careful selection of directors has made the Agricultural Society a potentially strong one. I hope that all officials of the Pumpkin Show pull together to make this fall's show truly "Bigger and Better than Ever."

IN THE last world war German propaganda didn't stand much chance in competition with the Allies' propaganda. From very early in the game Germany's means of communication with most other countries was cut off by the severing of its cable. Verbal radio broadcasting hadn't been developed then. Morse dispatches were transmitted wirelessly, but the method still was so primitive that these messages were practically unintelligible. Early in the war, as foreign editor for an American news agency, I tried to make sense out of reams of such stuff, addressed from Berlin to New York. It was hopeless. Later, as Uncle Sam's publicity agent in Buenos Aires, South America, I received oodles of wireless from the United States, but I couldn't read 'em. However, I did get understandable cables. Not from Germany, though. The Germans were corked up tight, as to friendly propaganda.

Teuton atrocity stories were distributed "ad lib" and the kaiser couldn't answer 'em. I don't say they weren't true, but the kaiser's side couldn't be heard from.

Illustratively: At the present time the Anglo-French version is that a German submarine sank the Athenia. The Germans deny it. They couldn't have done so in 1914-18.

My conclusion is that we'll get a better balanced picture of this war than we did of the last one. Accounts will conflict, of course, but at least there'll be that conflict.

It may make it easier for neutral countries to stay neutral.

OUR PAN-AMERICAN REPUBLICS

The Pan-Americans, too, are more cohesive than they were in 1914-18.

With all due respect for President Wilson, the Latin new world, in that area, regarded his administration as a bullying outfit. Quite a few of our southern neighbors were pro-German because Woodrow Wilson was anti-German and they were anti-Wilson.

I lived there, so I know. Today the Pan-Americans manifestly are overwhelmingly with us on the neutrality issue. Even Argentina's yielding — though it doesn't like us very well, because we're such pronounced agricultural competitors.

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have wrought the change, mainly as a result of their verbally diplomatic treatment of the southern republic — which just love international super-politeness.

PAN-AMERICAN CONSOLIDATION
This war, by the way, should consolidate Pan-Americanism as never before.

The last one ought to have done it. Before it broke out Latin America did the bulk of its buying in Europe. The war left Europe in no shape to fill further overseas orders; so we grabbed 'em. If we'd had any sense we'd have kept the market permanently. But our businessmen were so greedy that we antagonized 'em. They switched back to Europe.

Here's our second crack at it. Who says that foreign war won't have it's tragic repercussions in the United States?

Dope's to the effect that the overseas conflict will skyrocket the price of Scotch whiskey. Naturally. The Scotch will be diverted from production of whiskey to war munitions.

Corn and our other domestic fluid will be benefited, but that's small consolation to our domestic preferential consumers.

Recent Progress In Blood Diseases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A REPORT on Medical Progress in the New England Medical Journal, Professor Fitz, of Boston University, picks certain events as of importance in our knowledge of kidney disease and high blood pressure.

(1) Goldblatt's work on the production of high blood pressure experimentally by the progressive destruction of kidney tissue.

Working in the wards of a hospital, the physician soon learns that there is an intimate relationship between high blood pressure and chronic kidney disease. Seldom does he find marked elevations of blood pressure without at the same time discovering impairment of the kidneys. Associated with this and caused by the increased pressure it has to work against, is always some degree of heart involvement. Which phase of the condition will be uppermost depends on the individual case.

Compared to Triangle
The condition may be compared to a triangle; at one apex is the heart, at one the kidneys, and at a third the arteries. Which system will form the symptom is not the same in Smith as in Jones, but in each case all three symptoms—blood vessels, kidneys, heart—are more or less involved.

The question of which comes first arises. Does the kidney destruction cause the high blood pressure, or does the arterial degeneration in the kidneys cause them to fail?

Goldblatt came along with some experimental facts. By shutting off the circulation to the kidneys gradually, he was able to produce, in the course of time, high blood pressure. I saw a patient last week with an atrophied right kidney and high blood pressure. If the atrophied kidney were removed surgically, would the blood pressure fall? Such individuals may form a group in which high blood pressure can be cured by a single direct surgical approach.

(2) Decreasing enthusiasm for other forms of surgery in high blood pressure, which are not getting the cheer they received a few years ago.

Adrenal Gland Surgery
The adrenal glands, for instance, secrete a substance—adrenalin—which, when injected into the veins, immediately raises blood pressure.

The idea was conceived a few years ago that if the adrenals could be removed, one cause of high blood pressure would be removed also.

In clinics where this has been done, some enthusiastic reports followed, but skepticism prevailed. Now Ragoff and Marcus show by extensive experimental investigation that prolonged increased secretion of the adrenals is incapable of producing prolonged high blood pressure, or of any change in the arteries even remotely resembling that which we see in high blood pressure.

(3) The formation of kidney stones. Different stones are composed of different chemical salts. The diet to keep down the formation of the different stones should not be the same. For cystine and uric acid stones, there should be an alkaline reaction; for the phosphate and calcium stones, the urine should be kept acid with an acid-ash diet and ammonium chloride.

It is interesting to realize how much more is known concerning kidney stones than was known a few years ago. Albright says that when a patient asks whether his kidney stone can be dissolved, the question cannot be dismissed too lightly.

Phantom Ranch

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

SHOT KNEW he would have a tremendous job of scrubbing pots and pans after supper there in Escobar's camp, and so would remain free of bonds. But after that he likely would be tied and locked in again.

"That's my moment to scam," he decided. "I'll make a run for it, somehow."

He still had his concealed butcher knife. He still managed to keep his axe near at hand. He had spotted a long dagger-like meat skewer which would be a fine weapon, too. Probably he would have to crack a cook's skull with that at the crucial moment.

Only thing that worried him was lack of a horse. The remuda, he noticed, had many a fine horse in it. Probably most of them were stolen, but yonder a couple of hundred yards away were four or five hundred horses. They were kept near the base of an overhanging cliff, a sheer rock wall several hundred feet high. This served as part of a natural fence and kept the horses near the soldiers so that any other ambitious thieves or, say, any federal soldiers, could not take the herd without having a fight right at their hands. It was a smart move on Escobar's part thus to guard his most valuable possessions—his cavalry horses; the "army's" whole career depended on horse flesh, Shot knew.

Well, he would bide his time until the summer twilight became full darkness if possible, then he would have a chance to escape on foot. He could stoop low and run, darting behind rocks and shrubs. There were sentries out, of course, but they would not shoot so accurately in the dark. He'd have a chance. He'd run like a deer, circle back and try to locate Lorena on the hill-top whence she had sent up her smoke signal. Maybe she even had some of the Phantom men up there.

The thought thrilled him! He'd give 10 years of his life to have his own picked riders at hand now to burst into Escobar's camp. But no. No, that would be foolish. Anyway, he had to stop such conjecture, or he might not have any year left. He would have to maneuver to escape on his own, without help. He was prepared to try it, but consternation suddenly struck Escobar's men and an opportunity faced Shot Rogers from an unexpected source. His first knowledge of it came when a horse screamed.

A horse screams a terror in a very definite way. It is not a whinny, nor a playful squeal. It is a nerve-tugging sound that alarms men as well as other horses themselves. Knowing horses thoroughly,

Shot looked at once at Escobar's herd.

"EEEE-eee-eee-a-a-a-a-a-a!"

The screaming had suddenly become a chorus. Horses were plunging. Animal bodies were striking each other. A man shouted, then another.

"HOAH! LOS CABALLOS!" Luis Escobar yelled, running from his headquarters tent. "QUIEN ES? HO! PRONTO!"

In scarcely 30 seconds the screaming had become a frenzy. Shot could hear people running everywhere, men calling, shouting, yelling orders and counter orders. A roaring of hoofs added to the crescendo now. Noise of shattering planks were heard—something had struck the light fence erected there. Somebody yelled that a tent was down. Two men were shrieking in pain.

Quite unconsciously Shot Rogers had started running with all the other men toward the remuda. In the light of campfires, the night now was almost full dark, save for starlight. He had run in the course taken by Luis Escobar himself—had just run, run from an instinctive urge of duty to help stop the stampeding horses, as any ranch man would have run.

But all at once Shot halted.

"My god—oh, my lordy!"

He murmured. His chance had come! He turned about and started running in the opposite direction.

Almost immediately a mass of frenzied horses across his trail. Shot goaded in fury—if he could but catch one, if he could only have his hands on a lariat rope!

"Where is the bugler?" Luis Escobar was roaring in Spanish. "Call out the men. Blow assembly. Assembly, you fool! Where are you? Spread out everybody and try to get 'em turning! Turning in a circle! Stop that shooting!"

Shot could hear Escobar's voice above the wild melee.

More horses were plunging from his right now, so Shot leaped on a convenient rock, then up to another some eight or ten feet high for pure self protection. Even in the darkness he could see four or five men who were less fortunate. They were knocked down, trampled, and, of course, horribly mangled by the stampeding hoofs. The more the animals plunged and reared and screamed, the more frightened they became. It was a terrifying scene, and Shot could see the whole maddening force of it.

Horses seemed to be running in every direction at once. A group of them plunged right into the long avenue of tents that had been there in military array, stripping and tearing down the canvas without a halt. Several struck cows, ropes or other obstructions and somersaunted—thump and groan, roll and kick and scream, and up and on again.

Shot moved from one edge of his rock to the other. It was a boulder the size of an automobile, affording him precious safety at the moment and a grand spectator's view; but he was striving now for a chance to leap down and escape with the stampeding animals. Surely here was the break he needed! And yet he couldn't take advantage of it because the horses themselves hemmed him in, a milling sea of animals around him. Never in all his life had he been so close to so much confusion, not the least of which now was the shrieking wounded and terribly frightened Mexican men.

When Shot finally leaped, he hit running.

He saw an opening in the melee and darted through it. From somewhere, though, a rope was snaking by. Caught probably in flying hoofs, a tent rope, or a lasso. It caught Shot's high boot heel and tripped him. The young American struck the ground with an "Uhm-n-n-n," and lay there in the dirt and darkness several seconds, stunned, before he could regain his feet and start running again.

He heard Luis Escobar shouting, and for no known reason he swerved toward that worthy.

"LOS CABALLOS-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O-O!" HEY-HEY-YO-O-O!"

Escobar's orders were unintelligible now, as confused and futile as the horses' plunging. Most of the animals had trampled and leaped and galloped on so that the camp area was free of them and save for the several dead or wounded men the soldiers were in frantic pursuit. Escobar, the general, was almost hysterical, darting here and there, waving arms and shouting hoarsely.

Shot heard him, then saw him, and stopped dead in his tracks.

Escobar was not 20 feet away. And he was alone, on foot. Miraculously he had not been injured by the stampeding herd. Shot could still see his sword swing foolishly at his side. Swinging foolishly now, and yet it was a genuine sword. Shot remembered that a sword was a weapon. Also that Luis Escobar had caused him and the folk he loved untold trouble of late. That Luis Escobar was a traitorous soldier, no more than a bandit whom the Mexican government itself had caused to fear. Also that three of his thieves on a kidnaped Lorena Hamilton.

Impulsively young Shot Rogers made up his mind. He was in a terrible hurry to escape, now that opportunity had presented, but here at hand was something even more tempting.

FRIENDS: The Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Association are taking steps to decorate Circleville in a suitable fashion for the annual Pumpkin Show, which opens in just a little over a month. They are planning to give a prize to the storekeeper whose place of business is best decorated inside and out for the big festival. The program should have your cooperation because it will help to make the fall event a better one. Congratulations go to you for election of Forrest Short as director of the horse division to succeed Elmer Wolf, whose health prevents him from serving again. Mr. Short has a background in the horse breeding industry that should help him in making the horse division a success. His father, the late Cary Short, enjoyed an international reputation in the horse trading and breeding business. His brother, Harry, is one of the best known horse handlers and trainers in Ohio. Careful selection of directors has made the Agricultural Society a potentially strong one. I hope that all officials of the Pumpkin Show pull together to make this fall's show truly "Bigger and Better than Ever."

Recent Progress In Blood Diseases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN A REPORT on Medical Progress in the New England Medical Journal, Professor Fitz, of Boston University, picks certain events as of importance in our knowledge of kidney disease and high blood pressure.

(1) Goldblatt's work on the production of high blood pressure experimentally by the progressive destruction of kidney tissue.

Working in the wards of a hospital, the physician soon learns that there is an intimate relationship between high blood pressure and chronic kidney disease. Seldom does he find marked elevations of blood pressure without at the same time discovering impairment of the kidneys. Associated with this and caused by the increased pressure it has to work against, is always some degree of heart involvement. Which phase of the condition will be uppermost depends on the individual case.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Compared to Triangle
The condition may be compared to a triangle; at one apex is the heart, at one the kidneys, and at a third the arteries. Which system will form the symptom is not the same in Smith as in Jones, but in each case all three symptoms—blood vessels, kidneys, heart—are more or less involved.

The question of which comes first arises. Does the kidney destruction cause the high blood pressure, or does the arterial degeneration in the kidneys cause them to fail?
Goldblatt came along with some experimental facts. By shutting off the circulation to the kidneys gradually, he was able to produce, in the course of time, high blood pressure. I saw a patient last week with an enlarged right kidney and high blood pressure. If the atrophied kidney was removed surgically, would the blood pressure fall? Such individuals may form a group in which high blood pressure can be cured by a single direct surgical approach.

(2) Decreasing enthusiasm for other forms of surgery in high blood pressure, which are not getting the cheer they received a few years ago.

Adrenal Gland Surgery
The adrenal glands, for instance, secrete a substance—adrenalin—which, when injected into the veins, immediately raises blood pressure. The idea was conceived a few years ago that if the adrenals could be removed, one cause of high blood pressure would be removed also.

In clinics where this has been done, some enthusiastic reports followed, but skepticism prevailed. Now Ragoff and Marcus show by extensive experimental investigation that prolonged increased secretion of the adrenals is incapable of producing prolonged high blood pressure, or of any change in the arteries even remotely resembling that which we see in high blood pressure.

(3) The formation of kidney stones. Different stones are composed of different chemical salts. The diet to keep down the formation of the different stones should not be the same. For cystine and uric acid stones, there should be an alkaline reaction; for the phosphate and calcium stones, the urine should be kept acid with an acid-ash diet and ammonium chloride.

It is interesting to realize how much more is known concerning kidney stones than was known a few years ago. Albright says that when a patient asks whether his kidney stone can be dissolved, the question cannot be dismissed too lightly.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

SHOT KNEW he would have a tremendous job of scrubbing pots and pans after supper there in Escobar's camp, and so would remain free of bonds. But after that he likely would be tied and locked in again.

"That's my moment to scam," he decided. "I'll make a run for it, somehow."

He still had his concealed butcher knife. He still managed to keep his axe near at hand. He had spotted a long dagger-like meat skewer which would be a fine weapon, too. Probably he would have to crack a cook's skull with that at the crucial moment.

Only thing that worried him was lack of a horse. The remuda, he noticed, had many a fine horse in it. Probably most of them were stolen, but yonder a couple of hundred yards away were four or five hundred horses. They were kept near an edge of an overhanging cliff, a sheer rock wall several hundred feet high. This served as part of a natural fence and kept the horses near the soldiers so that any other ambitious thieves or, say, any federal soldiers, could not take the herd without having a fight right at their hands. It was a smart move on Escobar's part, thus to guard his most valuable possessions—his cavalry horses; the "army's" whole career depended on horse flesh, Shot knew.

Well, he would bide his time until the summer twilight became full darkness if possible, then he would have a chance to escape on foot. He could stoop low and run, darting behind rocks and shrubs. There were sentries out, of course, but they would not shoot so accurately as he had hoped.

The thought thrilled him! He'd give 10 years of his life to have his own picked riders at hand now to burst into Escobar's camp. But no. No, that would be foolish. Anyway, he had to stop such conjecture, or he might not have any year left. He would have to maneuver to escape on his own, without help. He was prepared to try it, and doubtless would have tried, but consternation suddenly struck Escobar's men and an opportunity faced Shot Rogers from an unexpected source.

His first knowledge of it came when a horse screamed. A horse screams a terror in a very definite way. It is not a whinny, nor a playful squeal. It is a nerve-tugging sound that alarms men as well as other horses themselves. Knowing horses thoroughly,

Shot looked at once at Escobar's herd.

"EEEE-e-e-e-e-a-a-a-a-a!" The screaming had suddenly become a chorus. Horses were plunging. Animal bodies were striking each other. A man shouted, then another.

"HOAH! LOS CABALLOS!" Luis Escobar yelled, running from his headquarters tent. "QUIEN ES? HO! PRONTO!"

In scarcely 30 seconds the screaming had become a frenzy. Shot could hear people running everywhere, men calling, shouting, yelling orders and counter orders. A roaring of hoofs added to the crescendo now. Noise of shattering planks were heard—something had struck the light fence erected there. Somebody yelled that a tent was down. Two men were shrieking in pain.

Quite unconsciously Shot Rogers had started running with all the other men toward the remuda. In a moment he found himself out of the light of campfire. The night now was almost full dark, save for starlight. He had run in the course taken by Luis Escobar himself—had just run, run from an instinctive urge of duty to help stop the stampeding horses, as any ranch man would have run.

But all at once Shot halted.

"My god—oh, my lordy!" he murmured. His chance had come!

He turned about and started running in the opposite direction. Almost immediately a mass of frenzied horses cut across his trail. Shot groaned in futility—if he could not catch one, if he could only have his hands on a lariat rope!

"Where is the bugler?" Luis Escobar was roaring in Spanish. "Call out the men. Blow assembly. Assembly, you fool! Where are you?"

Spread out everybody and try to get them turning! Turning in a circle! Stop that shooting!" Shot could hear Escobar's voice above the wild melee.

More horses were plunging from his right now, so Shot leaped on a convenient rock, then up to another some eight or ten feet high for pure self protection. Even in the darkness he could see four or five men who were less fortunate. They were knocked down, trampled, and, of course, horribly mangled by the stampeding hoofs. The more the animals plunged and reared and screamed, the more frightened they became. It was a terrifying scene, and Shot could see the whole maddening force of it.

Horses seemed to be running in every direction at once. A group of them plunged right into the long avenue of tents that had been there in military array, stripping and tearing down the canvas without a halt. Several struck cots, ropes or other obstructions and some-

Proper pruning of trees

When you see a stub, or stubs, projecting out from a tree you can be sure that the person who removed the branches was either careless or inexperienced in the proper pruning of a tree.

A projecting stub, as shown in Figure 1 of the Garden-Graph never heals. It will finally become decayed and break off of its own accord. The decay, however, will continue to spread and eventually will travel down to the heartwood of the tree, crippling or killing it.

Figure 2 shows the proper type of cut to be used in removing a branch or projecting stub. The cut should be close enough to the trunk to enable the wound to heal properly and, in time, grow over the cut thus sealing the tree thus sealing the tree against the inroads of infection or decay.

American motorists appear to be driving smaller cars than they did in 1937, and motorists' taxes, doubled in the past 10 years, may be responsible, it is stated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Some time ago it appeared as though the Reds would have to back into their pennant while the Yanks were winning theirs like true champions. Today the picture is reversed. The Reds have settled down like a reformed playboy while the Yanks are skidding like a fat drunk on ice. However, the Yanks are so far in front, and their pursuers so weak, they have nothing to worry about. McKechnie's minute men have won four in a row from Dodgers and Giants while the Yanks have in gloriously blown three straight to the Indians and Tigers. The Reds gained half a game on the tenacious Cardinals yesterday by taking a pair from the Giants, 8-5 and 9-3 while the Cards were taking a single game from the stingless Bees, 6-3. Paul Derringer hung up his 21st victory for the Reds in the opener and Shoffner's neat relief job assured a favorable decision in the nightcap. The Cards hit hard behind Curt Davis to get him his 21st win. The Cubs again tightened their hold on third place by knocking over the futile Phils, 13-1, behind old Charley Root, and 5-2, behind Larry French. And Hank Leiber chipped in with his fourth homer in three days to put the second game on ice in the very first inning. Of the seven games played by the eastern clubs in the West, the Dodgers were the only ones able to win one. They took the nightcap from the Pirates, 8-4, after losing the first one, 4-3. The only consolation for the Dodgers in the opener was Dolph Camilli's 26th home run which puts him over his last year mark. The Yanks had the misfortune to stack up against Buck Newsom on one of his good days and could do nothing with him, the Tigers winning, 6-1. Buck hung up No. 17 for himself by giving only six hits and fanning seven while the Tigers were putting the rollers under Atley Donald.

Circleville High School football fans — hundreds strong — will get their first glimpse at the Tiger football machine at 8 o'clock Friday evening when Coach Roy M. Black parades his Red and Black stalwarts onto the gridiron of school field to meet the Columbus Holy Rosary varsity team. The game will be the first for each team, and indications are that a near capacity crowd will be present to watch the competition.

always a battler no matter what school may be providing the opposition. A team that won a championship one year must be tough the next, Coach Black declares, so his boys are looking forward to a battle.

Although the tiger mentor Thursday named a starting lineup he indicated in the late Thursday afternoon workout that he is not yet certain that the boys mentioned will get the starting nods. One guard position remains in doubt, Jim Shea and Tom Harden, both aggressive and both rugged, are still contesting for the starting call at the left guard spot. Both was tried there Thursday evening. Another change that loomed as possible was in the backfield where Smith, Jenkins, Moorehead and Bowsher are expected to get the call at the first kickoff. This combination worked for a while Thursday, then Smith went to the blocking halfback and Geib to quarterback. With Jenkins at the running half and Bowsher at full this crew continued to operate throughout the long signal drill.

Standings

Club	Won	Lost	Pct.	G.B.

New York	65	85	.434	18
Pittsburgh	62	73	.459	21
Boston	57	74	.435	24½

The tackles will be Hill and Liston and Bob Brown will be at center, with Clark Martin at the right guard spot.

On defense Bowsher will back one side of the line and Martin will pull out of the line to back the other side. Brown will play a guard spot on the defense, Hill and Liston both remaining in the line.

If the evening is very fans may expect the Tigers to throw plenty of passes. Smith and Bowsher are excellent passers and both ends and the other backs are good receivers. Smith will handle the punting duties with Bowsher doing the kicking off.

Averages 157.153

The starting line, end to end, will average 157 pounds and the backfield will average 153. Bowler, the fullback, will be the largest boy on the team, tipping the Daytonas at 209. Smith will be the lightest starter, 122 pounds. Foothead weighs 135 and Jennings 148. Top weights in the line belong to Liston, 175, and Hill 170. Brown weighs 145, Shea 141, Harden 140. Martin 152, Jackson 156 and Walters 140.

SET FOR RING

The game will start at 8 o'clock, Rodney Ross of Ohio State university to be the referee, Ray Coleman of Ohio Wesleyan to umpire and Red Tompkins of Wittenberg to be head linesman.

Reserved season tickets are available at Hamilton and Ryan rugstore, from members of the Toogoe Club and at the ticket office on Corwin Street prior to the game.

New Pads In Use

The last drill of the Tiger squad was held after school Thursday, all the boys putting on the coolest clothes they could find and leaving their padding in their lockers. The Red and Black squad is better equipped now than probably ever before. New hip, thigh and shoulder pads have been purchased. The headgears have been reconditioned and painted in red and black colors. Eighteen new jerseys have been distributed to the starting eleven boys and to the first seven substitutes.

Coach Black and his assistant, Tom Armstrong, have made no rash statements concerning the team. They believe that they have a squad of boys who will play the game every minute that they are on the field. The fact that some of the athletes were not able to appear for early-season drills may make the attack a little loggy, but there are enough boys in good condition that the Red and Black machine will give a good account of itself.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—In the setting where stark, stirring pugilistic drama was enacted 10 years ago, Tony Galento, barrel-bodied New Jersey bar-keep, and Lou Nova, strapping young Californian will tangle tonight in the first act of a three-act serio-comic extravaganza, the second act to be presented at Detroit Wednesday night of next week, when Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis encounters Bob Pastor. The third-act, or grand finale, will be a clash next June at New York between the survivors, probably Louis against Nova.

FIRE EPIDEMIC CONTINUES WITH BLAZE AT CONTAINER PLANT

DAMAGE SLIGHT FROM FLAME IN BIG STRAW RICK

City Department Answers Twelfth Alarm In First Half Of Month

WORKERS AID FIREMEN

Locomotive Spark Or Great Heat In Stack May Have Started Blaze

Cincinnati's "epidemic" of fires continued Friday when firemen were called to the Container Corporation plant at 7:10 a. m. where a big straw rick was burning. Plant officials said Friday that the loss to the straw would be a small figure, the greatest loss being in time. More than 20 workmen were employed ripping the rick apart and at least that many more were playing water on the smoldering straw.

The call was the twelfth the department has answered in the first 15 days of September.

Employees of the strawboard noticed the fire shortly after 7 o'clock Friday and spread the alarm. The city pumper was called. The big rick, which contains between 700 and 800 tons of straw, was split by the firemen and mill employees in an effort to confine the flames to one smaller part of the rick.

Rick Torn Apart

Bales of straw were being torn from the rick and were being soaked with water from six hoses. City fire hydrants and the Container Corporation's own wells were being used for the water used to combat the fire. There was no wind, so firemen and volunteer workers went about their duties without fear that the flames might spread.

The rick struck by fire had been erected only two weeks ago, George Groom, yard boss, said. Norbert L. Cochran, general manager of the Container Corporation plant, was on hand to watch the firefighters. He declared that the loss would be little except for the time required to extinguish it.

Origin Uncertain

How the blaze started remained uncertain. Strawyard employees said they believed a spark from a locomotive might have started it. Others believed that the extreme heat inside the rick might have caused the flames. One fireman declared that he believed the fire had been progressing for at least a day, deep on the inside of the rick, but that it hadn't broken into the open until early Friday.

The fire recalled the major disaster at the plant several years ago when A. C. Moore was the company's general manager. The fire started in a rick and, fanned by a high wind, caused great loss in the strawyard.

The fire department was informed at 11:10 p. m. Thursday that ties lying along the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks in Walnut Township were burning, but the local department could not answer the call to the scene. Sheriff's deputies notified C. & O. section employees who said they would go there. Grass burning in the vicinity of the railroad spread to the ties, local firemen were told.

JUNIORS, SENIORS TO ATTEND STATE CONTEST

Principal J. Wray Henry of the high school said Friday that only juniors and seniors of the high school will be permitted to attend the Ohio State University football game against Missouri, Oct. 7, as guests of the state school. Heretofore all high school pupils have been included. The tickets are being sold for 40 cents, these entitling pupils to a reserved seat and an official program.

HUNTERS SCAN LAWS AHEAD OF OPEN SEASON

Pickaway County sportsmen Friday were scanning dates and new rules for the 1939 hunting season after copies were mailed out by the state conservation department.

Squirrel season opens Monday, Sept. 25, and closes Tuesday, Oct. 10. The bag limit is four a day or eight in possession at any time after the opening day.

The stagger system will be used for the first time in the rabbit season. The season opens Wednesday, Nov. 8. The balance of November rabbits may be hunted only on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or Saturday. No hunting will be permitted for the first two days of each week.

All week days of December will be open for hunting. The bag limit is four a day. Rabbits cannot be sold in Ohio this year.

Pheasants may be hunted from noon Nov. 8 to Nov. 30, the limit being two cock birds. Grouse may be taken from Nov. 10 to Nov. 25. Roosevelt game preserve in Scioto County will not be open for grouse hunting this year.

Hoagy Carmichael's latest hit melody "Blue Orchids" will also be an orchestral feature of the broadcast.

Master of Ceremonies Tony Martin will solo in "Sing My Heart" and "What's New." Kay Thompson and her Rhythm Singers will contribute "Oh, You Crazy Moon." David Laughlin, tenor, will be heard in one of the most famous operatic arias of all time—the clown's lament from Pagliacci, "Vesti La Giubba." Solists, chorus and orchestra will close the broadcast with an ensemble number entitled "Good-night My Beautiful."

ONE MAN'S FAMILY

Another domestic crisis threatens to disturb the calm of "One Man's Family" in the episode on Wednesday, September 20, as Mother Barbour reveals that Hazel's husband, Bill Herbert, has threatened a divorce.

The family, which is heard over the NBC red network at 7 p. m. discusses "The Question of Bill Herbert" and soothes a broken-hearted Hazel. She had been spending the summer at Sky Ranch in the belief her husband was at home in San Francisco, only to discover when she went to visit him that he hadn't been home for three weeks.

CLASSICS BY ANDRE

Maestro Andre Kostelanetz will present his 45-piece orchestra playing the original score of Ravel's famous "Pavane" during the "Tune-Up Time" broadcast to be heard Monday evening, September 18, at 7 p. m., over the nationwide network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. The "Pavane," composed in 1899 for piano, is another classic which has become a popular hit of the season by adaptation of its major melody into a song entitled "The Lamp Is Low."

Hoagy Carmichael's latest hit melody "Blue Orchids" will also be an orchestral feature of the broadcast.

Master of Ceremonies Tony Martin will solo in "Sing My Heart" and "What's New." Kay Thompson and her Rhythm Singers will contribute "Oh, You Crazy Moon." David Laughlin, tenor, will be heard in one of the most famous operatic arias of all time—the clown's lament from Pagliacci, "Vesti La Giubba."

Soloists, chorus and orchestra will close the broadcast with an ensemble number entitled "Good-night My Beautiful."

ONE MAN'S FAMILY

Another domestic crisis threatens to disturb the calm of "One Man's Family" in the episode on Wednesday, September 20, as Mother Barbour reveals that Hazel's husband, Bill Herbert, has threatened a divorce.

The family, which is heard over the NBC red network at 7 p. m. discusses "The Question of Bill Herbert" and soothes a broken-hearted Hazel. She had been spending the summer at Sky Ranch in the belief her husband was at home in San Francisco, only to discover when she went to visit him that he hadn't been home for three weeks.

RADIO BRIEFS

Before Claudette Colbert started rehearsals for her Radio Theatre role in "The Awful Truth," she requested that Cecil B. DeMille arrange for her to see the movie from which the broadcast is adapted. DeMille borrowed a print of the film from Columbia Pictures and had it run off for Miss Colbert in his private projection room on the Paramount lot.

Lamour, Charlie McCarthy has warned that he intends to continue one Honolulu custom in Hollywood. That's the Hawaiian custom that if a girl likes you, she puts flower wreaths around your neck. "All this time, Dottie," said Charlie, "we've had it backwards. I've been sending you the flowers."

Pat Friday, the Music Hall's singing co-ed has returned to school at the University of California, Los Angeles, two weeks ahead of other students since she is chairman of her sorority's rush committee. The appointment, incidentally, is a tribute to her domestic science ability inasmuch as she has to arrange novelty luncheons and dinners for rushes.
